WHISKY

In Scotland, whisky is more than just a drink. It is a tradition, a craft, and a story told in every dram. From the Highlands to Islay, each region carries its own character, distinct yet harmonious when brought together. We honour that heritage with a carefully curated collection that balances well-loved classics with rare and distinctive finds.

We can almost see Herbie, baton in one hand and a hip flask of his favourite tippie close by, raising a silent toast to the room as another melody filled the air.

Just as the orchestra once provided the soundtrack to the city’s lively afternoons at Patrick Thomson’s Palm Court, our whiskies now set the tone. Smooth introductions, bold crescendos, and finishes that linger like a lasting encore.

GIN

Whisky may be our most famous tippie, but in recent years Scotland has become one of the world's most exciting centres for gin. From small-batch distillers to bold flavour innovations, gin has taken its place at the heart of the country's drinking culture, enjoyed neat, mixed, and in countless creative serves.

Our house pour, the Conductor's Batch, strikes just the right note. Produced at Summerhall Distillery, found along the route Herbie once walked home, it pays homage to our namesake. Served as a crisp G&T or one of our signature cocktails, this gin carries the spirit of the man and the music at the heart of our bar.
